DARWIN, CHARLES ROBERT. Adm. pens. at CHRIST'S, Oct. 15, 1827. Youngest s. of Robert Waring, M.D. of Shrewsbury, and Susannah, his wife, dau. of his father's friend, Josiah Wedgwood. [Grandson of Erasmus Darwin.] B. there Feb. 12, 1809. School, Shrewsbury (Dr Butler). Joined his brother, Erasmus, at Edinburgh University, 1826-8. Matric. Lent, 1828; B.A. 1832; M.A. 1837; Hon.L.L.D. 1878, on which occasion a monkey was let down in the Senate House. F.R.S., 1834. Medal of the Royal Society, 1853; Wollaston Medal of R.G.S., 1859; Knight of the Prussian Order Pour le Mérite; C.M., Academy of Vienna, M.D. University of Leyden, 1875; C.M., French Academy of Science, 1878. J.P. for Kent. The famous naturalist. It had been intended that he should be trained to follow his father's profession of medicine, but it failed to attract him. 'Anatomy disgusted him, the operating theatre ("before the blessed days of chloroform") horrified him, and "Materia Medica" left on his mind nothing but the memory of cold, breakfastless hours on the properties of rhubarb.' Neither did pure science attract him, the teaching of geology made him determine that whatever else might be his fate, he would not be a geologist. Later on he became friendly with Dr Grant, who was afterwards Professor of Zoology at University College, and eventually became attracted by the subject of the seashore fauna. After two years at Edinburgh, the idea of the medical profession having been abandoned, Darwin decided that the church should be his goal, and it thus becoming necessary that he should obtain an English university degree he came to Cambridge. His friendship with Henslow, Professor of Botany, had a very great influence on his after life; and the reading of Humboldt's Personal Narrative, fired his enthusiasm for natural history and travel. In 1831 he took up the study of geology, and after attending Prof. Sedgwick's lectures he accompanied him on a geological tour in North Wales. A few months later, thanks to Henslow's interest, he joined the 'Beagle' expedition to South America, where he collected many important geological specimens. This voyage had the greatest influence on his subsequent career. 'He left England untried and almost uneducated for science, he returned in 1836 a successful collector, a practised and brilliant geologist, and with a wide knowledge of zoology gained at first hand in many parts of the world.' Coming back to Cambridge he lived for some months at 22, Fitzwilliam Street, a fact which is commemorated by a plaque affixed there. 'And thus it was that within a year of his return he could begin his first note-book on evolution—the first stone, in fact, of the Origin of Species.' Secretary to the Geological Society, 1838-41; temporary retirement owing to ill-health. Gave definite written shape to his theory of evolution by natural selection, 1844. 'Induced by Lyell, the geologist, to write out results of his experiments, 1856.' Received a M.S. from the naturalist, Wallace, containing a theory of the origin of species identical with his own, 1858. From this many developments occurred which resulted in his writing several of his most important works, 1859-84. In the domain of botany he resuscitated Sprengel's theory of the fertilisation of plants, and published various botanical books, particularly during 1875-80: amongst the chief of which are Narrative of the Surveying Voyages of H.M.S. Adventure and Beagle...; Zoology of the Voyage of H.M.S. Beagle, which he edited; The Structure and Distribution of Coral Reefs; On the Origin of Species by means of Natural Selection, or the Preservation of Favoured Races in the Struggle for Life, of which the first edition (250 copies) was sold on the day of publication. Married his cousin, Emma Wedgwood, grand daughter of the founder of the Etruria works. He 'always retained a love for Cambridge and happy memory of his life here.' (Emma Darwin, n. 171.) Died Apr. 19, 1882, aged 73, at Down House, Bromley, Kent. Buried in Westminster Abbey. Portrait in the Hall, Christ's College. Father of Francis (1866), George H. (1863), Horace (1865) and William E. (1853), brother of the next. (D.N.B.; Shrewsbury Sch. Reg.; Biography by his son, Francis.)

French in Canada; Capt., 90th Foot, Jan., and 44th Foot, Oct. 1761. Retired, 1766, having succeeded his brother as 6th Bart., in June, 1763. M.P. for Weymouth, 1768-74, and for Bury St Edmunds (4 Parls.) 1774-1802. Master of Foxhounds and was interested in horse-racing. 'A good specimen of the type known as the English Country Gentleman.' A lifelong great friend of Charles (afterwards General) Lee. As to his possible marriage and legitimate issue, it is said that he married in America the dau. of a miller, by whom he had one son, who afterwards served as a private soldier in the American army. This is noted by Dr G. B. Jettison, who also says that the wife of Sir Charles was the dau. of an American planter, whose name was Courts. Certainly this baronet, who of four brothers was the only one to die a natural death, had five illegitimate sons, baptized at Rushbrook, 1770-85, and three dau., all by Frances Trece. At his death his estates went to his nephew and (apparently) heir at law, Frederick William (Hervey) 6th Earl (and afterwards 1st Marquess) of Bristol, who three years later sold them. Died s.p. legit. June 4, 1806, on his 60th birthday, when the baronetcy became extinct, or possibly only dormant. Buried at Rushbrook. Brother of the next and Thomas (1757); father of Robert (1700). (Rushbrook Parish Reg.; G.E.C., iv. 129.)

- DAVY, HUMPHRY. Adm. Fell.-Com. at JESUS, July 3, 1804. Of Cornwall. S. of Robert, woodcarver. B. Dec. 17, 1778. [Bapt. Jan. 22, 1779, at Madron, the parish church of Penzance.] Schools, Penzance G.S. and Truro. Kept by residence 'some terms.' [The above statements prove the assertion, which hitherto rested on a family tradition, that this great Natural philosopher was a Cambridge man.] Had been introduced to Dr Edwards, the chemist, who directed his attention to some phenomena of what was afterwards known as galvanic action. Superintendent of the 'Pneumatic Institution', Bristol, 1768-9. Nearly died in an attempt to breathe carburetted hydrogen gas, 1800. Lectured on galvanism and 'pneumatic chemistry' at the Royal Institution, where he was appointed director of the chemical laboratory, 1801. In 1802 he accepted the appointment of Professor of Chemistry, Royal Institution, and laid aside, for a time, the study of the medical profession and devoted himself exclusively to scientific research. Now that he had attained distinction as an original acquirer. . . he appears to have had it in contemplation to resume his professional studies, with a view to engage in medical practice as a physician. For this purpose he entered his name at Cambridge. . . Demonstrated the elementary existence of potassium, sodium and chlorine by the agency of the galvanic battery, 1807. Discovered the actual constitution of oxymuriatic acid, 1807. Gained the Napoleon prize from the Institute of France for his discoveries. Hon. LL.D. (Dubl.). Knighted, 1812. Appointed Faraday as his assistant in the laboratory of the Royal Institution, 1812. Experimented in Italy on ancient pigments and combustion of diamonds, 1812-13. Invented the safety-lamp, 1815. Created Baronet, 1818. F.R.S., 1820. Invented an ultimately abandoned system of protectors for preserving the copper sheathing of the bottoms of ships, 1823. Died worn out at Geneva, May 28, 1829. Buried there. A tablet placed in Westminster Abbey by his widow, and the statue on the spot, in the centre of Penzance, in which his earliest days were passed, are the only outward signs of appreciation of a philosopher of whom it has been justly said: "He was not only one of the greatest, but one of the most amiable of men." He married Lady Jane Apreece (née Kerr), after the death of her first husband, Sir Shuckburgh Ashby Apreece, in 1807. She was a prominent figure in the society of both Rome and London. There was no issue of the marriage. Author, The Sons of Genius, a poem (1795); published the first volume of the West Country Collections and Researches, a chemical and Philosophical, chiefly concerning nitrous oxide and its respiration (1790). (Memoirs of Sir H. Davy, by Dr John Davy; D.N.B.; Chantolere, Lent Term, 1941; J. A. Paris; F. Brittain.)
- DAVY, MARTIN. Adm. pens. (age 24) at CAIUS, 1787 [no date recorded] S. of William, of Iugoldsthorpe, Norfolk [a country gentleman of moderate estate, D.N.B.]. B. there. School, Lynn (Dr Lloyd). [D.N.B. gives 'educated at Norwich Grammar School. Studied Medicine at Edinburgh'] Matric. Michs. 1787; Scholar, 1787-91; M.B. 1792; Med. Lit. 1794, M.D. 1797; D.D. (per Lit. Reg.) 1811. Fellow, 1791. Steward, 1793. Registrar, 1795. President, 1795-1803. Master of the College, 1803-39. Vice-Chancellor, 1803 and 1827. Obtained leave for three years' travel for medical study, Apr. 13, 1790. Adherent of the Brunonian System of medicine. Ord. deacon (Bristol, Litt. dim. from Ivy) Oct. 31, 1810, priest, Dec. 8, 1810. F.R.S., 1801. F.S.A., 1812. Member of the Lunatic Soc. R. of Cotttingham, Cambs., 1827-30. Preb. of Chichester, 1832-9. Married, 1811, Anne Stevenson, of Hertford Street, W. Died May 18, 1839. Buried in the College chapel. A considerable benefactor to the College, leaving to it his estate at Heacham, Norfolk. Some of his despotic actions when Master of his college, and later as Vice-Chancellor, provoked much resentment. He is however credited with having thrown his college more freely open by abolishing restrictions and making academical merit the avenue to preferment and the college increased considerably in repute during his time.
- An unfavourable view of his strong and uncertain temper and his self-indulgence is given by Gunning in his Reminiscences, 1854, ii. 189-202, 359-66. In 1809 he wrote an interesting pamphlet entitled Observations upon Mr Fox's Letter to Mr Grey, contained in Lord Holland's preface to C. J. Fox's History of the Early Part of the Reign of James II., 1808, exhaustively discussing Chancellor's application of the term 'Merry' to the Nightingale in The Flower and the Leaf, line 99, and to negative evidence from Theophrastus. (Not to be confused with a contemporary of Trinity College, Oxford; s. of Thomas, of Iugoldsthorpe, clerk. Matric. July 21, 1810, age 19. B. 1811. 1824. Fellow of Magdalen, 1815-33. DEALTRY, THOMAS. Adm. sizar at St CATHARINE'S, Nov. 11, 1822. Of Rotherhithe, [B. at Knottingley, near Pontefract, in 1795, being a member of the Dealtry family of Lofthouse Hall, near Wakefield, who are said to have been poor.] Mainly self-taught. After leaving school was usher in a school at Doncaster, and tutor in a private family, marrying the sister of his pupil under romantic circumstances in 1819. She died and he married again in 1824. Matric. Michs. 1826; LL.B. (1st Class Law Classes) 1828. Ord. deacon (Ely) June 1, 1828; priest, Nov. 2, 1828. Officiating Minister, St Mary-the-Less, Cambridge, June-Nov. 1828, and at St Giles's and St Peter's churches, July, 1828. His preaching attracted the attention of Charles Simeon who was instrumental in sending him to India, where he was a chaplain in Bengal, 1828-48. In 1835, when still in this office, appointed Archdeacon of Calcutta by Daniel Wilson, Bishop of Calcutta. When home on leave in 1848-9 ministered at St John's, Bedford Row, London. Was for some years Hon. Secretary to the C.M.S. at Calcutta. In 1849, when on the point of retiring from the East India Company's service, nominated as third Bishop of Madras on the recommendation of Bishop Wilson. Consecrated at Lambeth, Dec. 1849, and created D.D. by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Arrived at Madras at the end of Jan. 1850, and landed there under the then usual salute of seventeen guns, enthroned at the Cathedral under the orders of Government, Feb. 2, 1850. 'It is a remarkable fact that so little was thought of the ceremony and of the importance of his enthronement, that very few persons besides the local clergy were present, and no notice was taken of it in the local press. This omission did not trouble him, for he thought very little of either himself.' One of his first innovations at Madras Cathedral was 'to shorten the Sunday morning services to the great joy of the congregation.' After an episcopate lasting nearly 12 years, during which he was responsible for much church building, the Bishop died in Madras, Mar. 4, 1861, aged 65. Buried in the Cathedral burial ground where, on his tomb, it is recorded that 'he laboured in India with singular fidelity and unsparring devotion for more than 30 years.' M.I., Madras Cathedral. Author, The Divinity of our Lord Jesus Christ proved from his own discourse, 1830. Father of the next. (D.N.B.; Boase, I. 841-2; G. Mag., 1861, 1, 583; J. J. Higginbotham, The Episcopate of Bishop Dealtry.)

DES VOEUX, HENRY. B.A. incorp. from Dublin, 1820; M.A. 1820. Adm. at EMMANUEL, July 3, 1821. Doubtless the Rev. Henry Desvoeux, 3rd s. of Charles Philip Vincent, 1st Bart., M.P., of Indville, Queen's Co., and Woodhall, Yorks.; adm. at Trinity College, Dublin, July 4, 1803, age 17; B.A. 1807. His grandfather, the Rev. Martin Anthony Vincent De Baquecourt, who assumed the surname of Des Voeux, and took up his abode at Portlanning, Queen's Co., was formerly of Baquecourt, Normandy, and had incurred the displeasure of his family by abandoning the Church of Rome. Henry, s. of the Rev. Henry, became 5th Bart.; and his son, Charles Champagne, succeeded as 6th Bart. Henry married (1) 1812, Frances, only dau. and heiress of Daniel Dalrymple, of Barrow, Co. D'ETCHEGOYEN, ARMAND ADALBERT JEAN. Adm. at CLARE, Oct. 7, 1874. Matric. Michs. 1874; B.A. 1878.

DE THIERRY, CHARLES PHILIP [HIPOLYTUS]. Adm. Fell.-Com. at QUEENS', June 8, 1820; from Oxford. Matric. (Magdalen Hall) May 26, 1819, age 25. S. and h. of Charles (Baron de Thierry), a French refugee, of St Marylebone, Middlesex. B. at Brussels, 1793. Matric. Michs. 1820. Migrated to Downing, Apr. 21, 1821. Of Bathampton, Somerset. While at Cambridge met the two Maori chieftains, Hongi Heke and Waitoko, who came to England with the lay missionary, Thomas Kendall. Entered into an agreement to purchase land and found a Colony in New Zealand. In 1823 received a deed of grant signed by three Maori chieftains, purporting to grant him, 'in return for 36 axes, all the lands woods and waters along the Hokianga River.' Sought in vain for official support. In 1824 made an offer to the King of the Netherlands to purchase his Majesty's rights in New Zealand for a lump sum payment of £50,000 sterling, but this was rejected. Opened an office in London for reception of applications from intending colonists, 1826. Went to the U.S.A. about 1833. In 1837 took ship in the Namrod, arriving at Hokianga, Nov. 4, 1837; landed there as 'King Charles,' but his claim to the property and his schemes for a kingdom were alike repudiated. Left all but destitute, he became a settler; afterwards a teacher of music at Auckland. Though generally regarded as an adventurer, he appears to have been inspired by a genuine desire for the welfare of white settlers in New Zealand. A certain belated recognition of his claims to kingship by the French Government in 1830 doubtless hastened the annexation of New Zealand by Great Britain in that year. Died July 8, 1864, at Auckland. (Boase, v. 90; Al. Oxon.; Gerda Morgan, Cambridge Review, Dec. 1927; J. de la Valette, The Times, Mar. 14, 1927.)

- DOHERTY, HUGH LAWRENCE. Adm. at TRINITY HALL, 1896. [3rd] s. of William, of Oakfield, Clapham Park, London, S.W. [B. Oct. 8, 1875.] School, Westminster. Matric. Easter, 1896. Lawn tennis 'blue', 1896, 1897 and 1898. Won the All England Singles Championship, 1902-6 (when he resigned the title) and the All England Doubles with his brother R. F. (next), 1897-1900 and 1903-5. In the Davis International Cup contests, although once on the losing side, he never himself lost a match. The only Englishman to win the American National Championship, 1903. After 1906 retired from competition lawn tennis and became very efficient at golf. Served in the Great War, 1914-18 (2nd Lieut. (E.) in anti-aircraft branch of the R.N.R.). This strenuous work probably led to the breakdown of a never robust man, and he died Aug. 21, 1916, after a long illness. (The Times, Aug. 23, 1919; Record of Old Westminsters; D.N.B.)
- DOHERTY, REGINALD FRANK. Adm. at TRINITY HALL, 1894. S. of William, Esq., of Oakfield, Clapham Park, London, S.W. [B. Oct. 14, 1872.] School, Westminster. Matric. Michs. 1894. Lawn tennis 'blue', 1895, 1897 and 1899. Won the All England Singles Championship, 1897-1900, and the Davis Cup (singles), 1903 and with his brother, H. L. (above) the doubles, 1902-6. As a master of the game he was possibly greater than his younger brother, and his style came near perfection. His brother was a better match player, and thought out the game more thoroughly. In size they were a great contrast, R. F. being tall and very thin, and H. L. below medium height but well-knit. Neither of the brothers had robust health. Died Dec. 29, 1910, at 4, Albert Hall Mansions, S.W. The brothers will long be remembered as two of the greatest players of lawn tennis. Ord. deacon (Gloucester) Dec. 22, 1839; priest, June 14, 1840. Head Master, King Edward's School, Bury St Edmunds, 1841-55. A brilliant and original scholar; one of the pioneers in applying comparative methods to Greek and Latin Philology. His abilities being not those of an administrator, his work at Bury St Edmunds was chiefly valuable for the intellectual influence he exerted on the town. In Jashar (published 1854) he advanced the bold critical theory that fragments of a book of Jashar are to be detected throughout the Old Testament up to and including the reign of Solomon, and that they are 'the religious marrow of the scriptures.' The outcry which this provoked very possibly precipitated his resignation as Head Master. Returned to Cambridge, 1855, where he obtained a great reputation as a private tutor. Edited Buckham's The Theatre of the Greeks, originally published in 1827; The New Cratylus, 1839; Varronianus, 1844; Jashar; Fragmenta archetypa carminum Hebraeorum, 1854, etc. Married, 1840, Laetitia, dau. of Sir John Mortlock, banker, of Cambridge. Litt.D. (Oxford) 1908. Studied in Leyden and Louvain on leaving Cambridge. Spent 1863-4 alone in Norway, studying glacier action, and a paper of his on this subject was read at the British Association Meeting in 1864. Travelled, as a poor student, in France, Spain, Italy, Greece, North Africa, Syria, Palestine, Egypt and the Sinai Peninsula. Joined a pilgrim caravan to Mecca and the Sinai for many years in Arabia. Returned to England, 1875, broken in health. Addressed the R.G.S. on his travels, Nov. 27, 1883. In 1912 received the R.G.S. Royal Founder's Medal. Author of Travels in Arabia Deserta (1884), in which he contributed much to Western knowledge of Arabia. Was the first to record accurately the true direction of the great water-courses of Wadi Hamd and Wadi er-Rumma. This work was issued by the Cambridge University Press after it had been refused by four other publishers, one of whom wrote that 'it ought to be practically re-written by a practised literary man.' At first only scholars appreciated its value and the style of its writing; but in 1908 an abridgment was published by Mr Edward Garnett under the title of Wanderings in Arabia which brought much appreciation. In 1921 Travels in Arabia Deserta was re-issued with a new preface by the author and an introduction by T. E. Lawrence, which was accepted as a classic of travel. The rest of his life was given up to poetry, and he lived a recluse's life, first on the Riviera, and after 1899 at Tunbridge Wells, Eastbourne, and from 1923 at Sissinghurst, Kent. Hon. Fellow, British Academy. His published poems were, Dawn in Britain, 1900; Adam cast forth, 1908; The Titans, 1910; The Cliffs, 1909; The Clouds, 1912; Mansoul, or the Riddle of the World, 1920. Vice-Chancellor, 1795-6 and 1810-11. Ord. deacon (Hly) May 26, 1782; priest (Peterb.) Nov. 10, 1783; C. of Whittlesford, Cambs., 1785. V. of Gedney, Lincs., 1790. Married, June 15, 1797, Mary, dau. of Anthony

Mainwaring, of Shirrall Hall, Staffs., and niece of Dr Mainwaring, Lady Margaret Professor of Divinity, and had issue. During his Mastership the College property was considerably improved by several enclosures which took place so generally throughout the country about this period, these included land in the parishes of Grantchester, Wilbraham, St Giles, Cambridge, Barnwell, and Landbeach. In 1797 the office of Protobibliothecarius was vacant, and the Heads nominated Philip Douglas, D.D., Master of Bennet, and Thomas Kerrich, B.D., President of Magdalene College. Dr Douglas was a decided invalid, and confined himself very much within the precincts of his Lodge, and dared not for any consideration pass three hours in the Public Library, which at that time there was no means of warming, and it was so extremely damp that few persons could pass any length of time in it with impunity. He had besides lost one eye, and suffered so much from inflammation in the other that he was frequently confined for days together to his bed (Historical Reg., 55, note 14). During his second Vice-Chancellorship, 1810-11, he presided at the installation of the Duke of Gloucester as Chancellor. "The excessive thinness of both himself and his wife occasioned a distich by Mansel in which they were described as "two splinters which make but one bone" (Masters' History of Corpus College). Died Jan. 2, 1822, aged 64. Buried in the College Chapel. M.I. Brother of Robert (1787). (Harrow Sch. Reg.; P. W. L. Adams, History of the Douglas Family; Burke, L.G.; Lamb, History of Corpus; D.N.B.; Nonhants. Clergy.)

Ord. deacon (Bristol) at Trinity College Chapel, Cambridge, Apr. 6, 1811; priest (London) Jan. 8, 1815; C. of Milcom and Horsey, Dorset, 1811-12. The remainder of his life was spent in changing from one home to another in search of health, as his existing diaries show. He appears to have officiated at West Molesey, Surrey, for a short time, in 1833. Ultimately he settled in Devonshire, first at Morebath and then at Tiverton. Married, 1813, Susanna (d. 1826), dau. of Christopher Aplip, of West Addebury, Oxon, and had issue, four sons and five daughters; he married secondly Anne Oram (née Bull), a widow, who died in 1866 without any issue by him. Died Oct. 22, 1867, at Exeter. Buried at Heavitree. Father of Alexander (1837). (College Lists; Burke, L.G., under Douglas of Salwarpe; P. E. Towell; P. W. L. (Scott, MSS.; Cockford; The Times, July 8, 1939.)
- DYER, GEORGE. Adm. at EMMAUEL, in 1774. S. of John, 'Citizen and Shipwright'. B. Mar. 15, 1755, in London. School, Christ's Hospital. (According to the D.N.B., his father was watchman at Wapping and he was sent to school at the age of seven by some charitable dissenting ladies). Matric. Mchcs. 1774; B.A. 1778. Usher at Dedham Grammar School, Essex, 1774. Returned to Cambridge and was Tutor to the family of Robert Robinson, under whose influence he became a Unitarian. Assisted at Swavesey, near Cambridge. For a time usher at the Grammar School, Northampton. In 1792 went to London and took chambers in Clifford's Inn, where he remained for the rest of his life. Contributed to the New Monthly and Gentleman's Magazine. Scholar and poet, but to the end of his days more or less a tutorial and book-seller's drudge. His state of poverty excited the pity of Mrs Mather (a 'landress') whose former 3rd husband was a solicitor in chambers opposite to Dyer's, who married him, and is said to have greatly improved his appearance. Travelled widely to obtain materials for a biographical work, that was not published. Said to have provided 'all that was original' to Valpy's edition of the Classics in 141 volumes (1809-31). Became totally blind. Noted for his sympathy, kindness, and total absence of humour. Charles Lamb, who was at Christ's Hospital with him, described him in Myford in the Long Vacation. Dyer 'swallowed the most preposterous of Lamb's stories, even to the report that he was to be made a peer, and showed his kindness by saying that Williams, who murdered two families, "must have been rather an eccentric character"'. Author, An Inquiry into the Nature of Subscription to the 39 Articles, 1780; Poems, 1792; The Complaints of the Poor People of England, 1793; Account of New South Wales, 1794; Dissertation on the Theory and Practice of Benevolence, 1795; Memoirs of Robert Robinson, 1795; The Poet's Fate, 1797; History of the University and Different Colleges of Cambridge, 1814; The Privileges of the University, 1824; Academic Unity, 1827. Died Mar. 2, 1841, in Clifford's Inn, London, aged 85. (Christ's Hospital Exhibitioners, 44; D.N.B.; Memoirs of Seventy Years, edited by Mrs Herbert Martin, pp. 99-102.)
- DYER, JOHN. LL.B. 1752 (per Lit. Reg.). 2nd s. of Robert, solicitor, at Aberglasney, Carmarthenshire. B. c. 1700. School, Westminster. Poet and artist. Went into his father's office, but after his father's death gave up business to study art under Jonathan Richardson. Spent some time as an itinerant painter in S. Wales and on the Welsh border. In 1727 published Grongar Hill which gained him reputation. Published the Ruins of Rome on his return from Italy in 1740. His health suffered henceforth from malaria caught in the Campaign. Ord. deacon (Lincoln) 1740 or 1741. R. of Calthorpe, Leics., 1742-54. (D.N.B. erroneously gives Calthorpe.) V. of Belchford, Lincs., 1751-5. V. of Coningsby, from 1752 and Kirkby-on-Burn, from 1755. Published The Fleece in 1757, upon which the 'visitor' is said by Johnson to have remarked that he 'would be buried in woollen.' A great lover of scenery at a period when that taste was out of fashion. His poems were severely criticized by Johnson, Gilpin and Scott, but their judgment was condemned by Drake in Literary Honors. Probably best known by a Sonnet which Wordsworth addressed to him. Married Miss Ensor of Coleshill, Warwickshire. Died of consumption. Buried at Coningsby, Dec. 15, 1757. (Record of Old Westminsters; D.N.B., which gives date of death, 1755.)
